Certain car models of the Volkswagen-Group have identical tie rod ends, tie rod assemblies and/or ball joints. In mounting these components, there are a range of possible nuts which could be used to fix the ball pin. If the incorrect nut is used, tightening may damage the fixture in the wheel carrier. In a worst case scenario the wheel carrier housing may split around the press-in sleeve. To avoid using the wrong nut, our parts are delivered including both types of nut. Essential for proper replacement of tie rod ends, tie rod assemblies or ball joints! When replacing safety-relevant components, the right nut for the respective vehicle model is instantly available – a big time saver for the mechanic.
